INDIAN SITUATION CRITICALLY GRAVE

GREAT MASS CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE DRIVE FLARES INTO RIOTING

VIOLENCE BREAKS OUT AND WORKERS QUIT JOBS IN INDUSTRIES

BOMBAY, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Soldiers and police, fighting to control widespread rioting on the second day of Mohandas K. Gandhi's campaign to end the British rule in India, have fired upon crowds in Bombay ten times yesterday and today as strikes and disturbances spread throughout the country.

Bloodshed ushered in Gandhi's "non-violent" civil disobedience campaign yesterday when the police were forced to fire six times.

A Bombay kovernment communique tonight said casualties on Sunday totaled eight killed and 159 wounded, but said it had no tally of today's casualties in clashes in which demonstrators stoned trains and automobiles, and burned government grain shops. Strikes closed some factories and schools.

Twenty-three were sent to hospitals with bullet wounds suffered when police fired into groups in the Dadar district of Bombay. In Poona police fired on a crowd. mostly of students, near Parsurambhau college, and two were removed to a hospital. Schools and colleges there were closed. Goondas, the Hindu name for hoodlums, threw botles through windows.

At Lucknow, police fired also on a crowd of striking University students who were trying to form a parade. Thirteen were arrested. Most of the schools, colleges and shops in Old Delhi were closed. In Karach all markets were shut and students of some schools and colleges were quitting.

All processions, meetings and assembles by congressmen and their sympathizers were banned in Madras City.

Srikrishna Sinha, the former congress party premier of Bihar, was arrested.

Reuters reported that police at New Delhi had turned back a small crowd of anti-British demonstrators who managed to get through an obstruction to the foot of the hill on which the house of Viceroy Lord Linlithgow is situated.

The work stoppages in some Bombay mills were in response to Mohandas K. Gandhi's "Do or Die" call for a "complete deadlock" by strikes and all other non-violent means.

As the campaign entered its second day amid shootings, showers of bottles and shouts of demonstrators, there were portents of even greater trouble ahead.

Bands of Hindus stoned some moslem shops in the "trouble area" of South Central Bombay. Police have the greatest fear of repetition of the communal Mos-

American Troops Not Being Trained Sit on Defensive

WITH THE U. S. ARMY GROUND FORCES IN ENGLAND Aug. 10.—(AP)—American troops have taken over some of England's defense areas and are ready to help the British meet a German invasion, but they are not being trained "to sit on the defensive."

Maj. Gen. M. W. Clark, commander of U. S. ground forces in Britain, said in his first press conference yesterday that United States troops are coming "by the thousands upon thousands" and added that "the sooner a second front could be opened the better."

The 46-year old general said that American troops were ready to invade the continent at once if necessary although they "could profitably use six months more training."

"In fact," General Clark said, "our men are far better trained than were American troops which reached France in the same period during the last war."

TEXAS SOLDIER IS CHARGED IN ASSAULT UPON ENGLISH GIRL

TO BE TRIED BY GENERAL COURT MARTIAL; IF GUILTY MAY GET DEATH

SOMEWHERE IN BRITAIN, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Private Travis P. Hammond, 25, of Keltys, Texas, the first American soldier of the second AEF to be tried by general court martial in Britain, pleaded innocent today to a charge of assaulting a 16-year-old English girl.

If convicted he is liable to a death sentence or life imprisonment as a violator of the 92nd article of war under which it is charged that Hammond "forcibly and feloniously against her will did have carnal knowledge" of the girl on July 17.

His trial was opened to the public although U. S. headquarters had announced earlier it would be conducted in private at the request of the girl's parents.

The court convened four days after King George had assented to an act of parliament placing all U. S. soldiers in Britain under jurisdiction of their own courts.

Col. Milton M. Towner, an air force officer, is presiding over the 11-man court which, with two exceptions is made up of air force officers

Capt. Lester Prichard, of St. Louis, Missouri, Hammond's counsel, objected to the description of the charge as "rape."

The first witness, Private E. Boutwell of Wolfe City, Texas, of the air force, related how he and Hammond on the evening of July 17 drank several bottles of beer and went to a YMCA canteen where they made dates with some girls.

He identified a tall, dark-haired and smartly-dressed girl in a tweed suit who came to the door of the courtroom as the girl Hammond dated. The name of the plaintiff was withheld.

Capt. Donald Reed, of St. Joseph, Mo., the prosecutor, said the offense occurred in an air raid shelter.

Asked whether beer had any effect on Hammond, Boutwell said "I cannot say about that. It certianly did on me."

The shop girl, testifying against Hammond, said she met him in a YMCA canteen where she was a volunteer worker, accompanied him to two pubs where they drank beer and wine, then went with him and another soldier and girl to an air raid shelter.

She said that Hammond kissed her and that when the other couple left she suggested leaving, too.

Instead, she testified, Hammond picked her up.

"I protested," the girl told the court. "I fought him and struck him and kicked him, but he put his hand over my mouth."

GERMAN MOTORIZED TROOPS HAMMERING AT OIL FIELD GATES

INDICATED RUSSIANS CARRYING OUT SCORCHED EARTH POLICY

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Driven back by relentless, hard thrusts of German motorized troops and Alpinists, Red army defenses before the oil fields of Maikop and in spurs of the Caucasian foothills appeared to be cracking today.

Front line dispatches telling of tremendous explosions roaring over a broad area seemed to indicate the Russians were carrying out with ruthless abandon the scorched earth policy in the first oil regions the Germans have been able to penetrate in their Caucasian thrust.

(The Germans, suddenly extending their drive eastward along the Baku railway toward the Caspian, claimed the capture of Pyatigorsk, 110 miles southeast of Armavir and midway between the Black Sea and Caspian. They already had claimed to have reached the Caucasian slopes on a 250-mile front and captured Maikop and Krasnodar in the northwest Caucasups.)

In large-scale tank battles in Kotelnikovski area of the Don elbow, southwest of Stalingrad, the Soviet machines appeared to be as strong as the Germans, and the Red army was counter-attacking with some success.

In Voronezh Sector.

Five hundred miles north of the Caucasus, in the Voronezh flank, the Russians were making further headway, extending their bridgeheads on the west bank of the Don, taking several populated places in violent fighting, and repulsing German counter-attacks between the Don and Voronezh.

The Germans were bringing up reserves and still maintaining communications with their groups before the city, however.

As the battle spread southward dispatches told of burning wheat fields, indicating that in some sectors the Russians had not been able to harvest the grain before the approach of the enemy, as they were able to do farther north.

There was no report here indicating whether the Russians who had been battling along the Black Sea and Sea of Azov coasts had been cut off by the German advance south of Kuschchevka. But it was possible most of them were giving battle along the Kuban.

As fresh German Alpinists drove from Armavir, dispatches said saber-swinging horsemen of the Cossack villages defeated them in the first encounters in the Caucasian foothills.

Ambushes along the roads along which the Germans were pressing were the favorite Cossack tricks.

(A Berlin broadcast said the Germans were advancing fan-like from Krasnodar toward the Red fleet navy base at Movorossisk on the Black Sea, from Maikop toward a secondary naval base at Tuapse, and from Voroshilovsk and Nevinnomyssakaya toward the upper course of the Kuma river.

(The Kuma river flows eastward into the Caspian. It thus appeared that the Germans after having penetrated the oil regions north of the Caucasus, were swiftly trying to drive a wedge from the Black Sea to the Caspian where they could cut the Allied supply line from the Persian Gulf.)

Cotton Crop of 3,177,000 Bales Texas Forecast

AUSTIN, Aug. 10.—(AP)—A Texas cotton crop of 3,177,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight is forecast as of Aug. 1 by the crop reporting board of the U. S. department of agriculture.

The forecast—first of the season—compares with 2,652,000 bales produced last year and 3,686,000 bales the average production for the 10-year period 1931-40.

While the acreage remaining for harvest this year at 8,303,000 acres is one of the smallest since cotton became an important Texas cash crop, the prospective yield per acre is relatively high at 184 pounds, compared with an average of 165 pounds per acre realized in 1941 and 160 pounds the 10-year average.

The cotton crop is farther advanced this year than last year, and with the exception of a few areas in the south central district, a good yield is in prospect over the entire state.

U. S. Air Force Ready to Attack German Points

LONDON, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Carl Spaatz, commander of the United States army air forces in Britain, declared today that the American air force was ready to begin attacks against Germany "within the immediate future."

"The American air forces and the Royal Air Force have worked in such full cooperation that we are proceeding ahead of the actual schedule," he said.

"Within the immediate future operations in accordance with plans that have been in the making between the Royal Air Force and the American air forces will commence."

Declaring his gratitude at the helpfulness of "our British ally," Spaatz added:

"Our enemy at the appointed time will feel the might of a thoroughly co-ordinated British-American air force."

RECENT ACTION OF COURT ON CERTAIN ROADS IS OPPOSED

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS MET MONDAY MORNING IN REGULAR SESSION

Letters of opposition from property-owners involved in recent resolutions passed by the commissioners court about roads near Spring Hill and Wildcat Ferry were read at the regular meeting of the court Monday morning. Refunding of bonds in the sum of $16,000 in the Blooming Grove Road District No. 8 as requested by the State Board of County and District Indebtedness was passed.

Claims were allowed except as noted on the claim docket. Two weigher's bonds were approved. The quarterly report of Joe E. Weigher's bonds were approved or Alvin Inmon and Russell Baxter, bith of Kerens.

A letter was read from John W. Carpenter, president of the Texas Power and Light Company, owner of considerable property along the old road to Wildcat Ferry on the Trinity river. The court passed a resolution, Aug. 1, instructing Carpenter to remove a barrier over the old road. Carpenter's letter maintained that the county does not own or maintain the stretch of road in question, and that is has been closed since the Wildcat Ferry was abandoned several years ago. He said he would remove the barrier as ordered by the court but asked that the resolution be rescinded. A hearing may be held on the matter, it was indicated, although no offilcal action was taken Monday morning.

A letter was read from the firm of Richard and A. P. Mays, attorneys for Clint Fort, regarding a resolution passed Aug. 1 directing that

BATTLE OF SOLOMON ISLANDS DEVELOPING INTO MAJOR ACTION

CRITICAL SITUATION ON RUSSIAN FRONT EVEN MORE OMINOUS MONDAY

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press War Editor.

The battle of the Solomon Islands was developing today into a major offensive which seemed likely to eclipse the defensive victories of Midway and the Coral Sea as American-led forces kept up their blows by sea, air and perhaps land against heavy Japanese opposition.

On the critical Russian land front the Red Army sagged back closerd to the foothills of the Caucasus against the tremendous weight of tanks and troops of a hard-driven German onslaught which carried within 60 miles of the Maikop oil fields.

In the extreme western Aleutians, a United States naval task force operation against the Japanese-seized outpost of Kiska appeared completed—its results still undisclosed.

The Chinese reported that Haiphong, Japanese entry port into French Indo-China was hit with terrific force yesterday in its first bombing of the war by United States planes based in China. The raiders were said to have hit steamers in the harbor and caused extensive damage without the loss of a plane.

Report From Nimitz.

The latest word from Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, United States naval commander in the Pacific, indicated that the initiative still was firmly in the hands of the American fleet and other allied forces as the battle of the Solomons blazed into its fourth day.

TWO WAR HEROES GET FIRST WINGS HARLINGEN SCHOOL

HARLINGEN, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Two war heroes possessed today the first pairs of wings issued by the United States army to air crew gunners.

Technical sergeants Eldred Scott, who took part in the Tokyo raid with General Jimmy Doolittle, and youthful Robert L. Golay, who handled a gun aboard one of the planes in the July Fourth bombing raid over the Netherlands, were presented with the insignia at graduation exercises yesterday for the largest class in the history of the Harlingen army gunnery school.

Members of the graduating class then filed before Scott and Golay to receive their insignia from the hands of the two seasoned aerial gunners.

"Now the gunner has something to wear on his chest to proclaim that he is a first-rate fighting man," said General H. H. Arnold, chief of the army air forces, on the army hour radio program featuring the ceremony."

WAR ANALYST SEES SOLOMON ISLANDS ACTION IN NATURE OF SECOND FRONT TO AID RUSSIA

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst.

The week-end has developed three major crisis which, although in widely separated theaters, seem to be closely related—(1) The American offensive against the Japanese in the Solomon and Aleutian Islands, (2) The further German gain in the Maikop oil zone of the northern Caucasus, and (3) The inauguration of the Indian Nationalist revolt against British rule.

While we have no official interpretation of the strategic purposes of the new drive against the Japs. I think we are warranted in assuming that it probably is intended to serve in part as a "second front" to protect Russia from the Nipponese during the height of the Caucasian pressure. There is danger that the Japanese may take advantage of the Soviet difficulties to attack Siberia, and our offensive may be intended to create a sufficient diversion, especially in the air, to discourage them from sticking a knife in Russia's back.

The Indian tragedy provides further incentive for the Japanese to duplicate their Pearl Harbor treachery and strike at Russia. With India thus stricken, the allies in danger of seeing this vast arsenal and vital strategic base rendered useless—or perhaps much worse—the hand of the United States against Japan will be weakened.

China Loses Power.

By the same token China loses striking power against the Japs. Since the Nipponese cut the Burma Road she has been getting most of her supplies from the outside world by air from India and over primitive trade trails through the mountains from that country.

However, while our offensive does not protect Russia, either by design or by circumstance, it undoubtedly is calculated to do more than create a diversion to help our Soviet ally. The Solomons and the neighboring Bismarck archipelago which the Japs hold, together with northeastern New Guinea, not only constitute a threat

MISSISSIPPI HISTORY REVIEWED SUNDAY AT ANNUAL MEETING

JUDGE WAYNE R. HOWELL MAIN SPEAKER; OFFICERS ARE RE-ELECTED

Reviewing the history of Mississippi and lauding some of the state's most outstanding public characters, District Judge Wayne R. Howell, in an address at the annual meeting of the Mississippi Association of Navarro and adjoining counties, at the Corsicana Fair Grounds Sunday afternoon, discussed the progressive steps that have been staken by that state during the past several years.

The membership re-elected all officers of the association for the ensuing year, but accepted the resignation of C. C. Sands as secretary-treasurer, naming Miss Joyce Summerall as successor.

O. E. Stone is president, having been elected at the first annual meeting August 8, 1941. Other officers include Judge T. A. Crowley of Kerens, vice president; N. S. Crawford of Kerens, chairman of the executive committee, and the following members of the executive committee: Joe Starnes, Corsicana; Silas M. Moore, Trinidad, and C. C. Sands, Corsicana.

Judge Howell was introduced by President Stone. He spoke of the notable contributions Mississippi has made to the nation in literature. He also recalled the part Mississippi has played in all military campaigns of the nation and reviewed the careers of some of the state's most outstanding public figures.

Of present-day political affairs, he expressed the opinion that Senator Pat Harrison is perhaps the greatest Mississippian of recent times.

In another part of his address, Judge Howell recalled several famous Texans who were native-born Mississippians and told of their outstanding public careers in this state.

Business Session.

During the business session, the association voted to hold the next annual meeting on the second Sunday of August, 1943.

Mayor John C. Calhoun spoke at the morning session, welcoming out-of-county members to Corsicana. He was presented by President Stone.

Entertainment at the afternoon meeting was provided by a quartette composed of C. C. Sands, Odie Owens, David Earl Denbow and Miss Marjorie White. H. C. Barlow assisted at the piano.

Miss Hortense Davant was presented in several readings.

Several resolutions were adopted, expressing appreciation to various organizations for assistance in arranging the meeting.

One of the itnertsenig features at the meeting was the exhibition of a quilt, owned by Joe Starnes of Corsicana, which was pieced in the form of the state of Mississippi. Each county of the state was shown on the quilt.

BOTH O'DANIEL AND ALLRED HAVE HARD WEEK'S SCHEDULE

By The Associated Press

Senator W. Lee O'Daniel, who during the first week of his runoff campaign for reelection depended upon radio broadcasts to reach the electorate, embarked today upon a schedule that would put an athlete to the test.

After an address at Olney at 10 a. m., he goes to Electra at 12:15 p. m., Crowell 3:30 p. m., Quanah 4:30 p. m.. Memphis 7 p. m., and winds up with a 9 p. m. address at Clarendon.

James V. Allred, O'Daniel's rival who made 15 appearances last week before west Texas audiences, continues his vigorous campaign with addresses at Bowie at 10:30 a. m., Sherman 2:30 p. m., Bonham 4:30 p. m., and a talk tonight at McKinney.

With only eleven days remaining before the Aug. 22 election, both senatorial candidates were expected to travel many hundreds of miles in an attempt to reach as many voters as possible.

O'Daniel is expected to stress the theme sounded in his second radio talk at Fort Worth last Saturday—an appeal for an overwhelming majority so that his critics in and out of Texas may be confounded.

In a statement issued yesterday Allred urged "everyone to vote—and to get others who did not vote in the first primary to vote," adding "we can win this war with ballots as well as bullets."

U. S. Bombers Attacked Bengasi At Dawn Sunday

CAIRO. Aug. 10.—(AP)—A large formation of U. S. army bombers attacked the supply port of Bengasi at dawn Sunday scoring direct hits on at least one ship and doing other damage in the harbor. All returned seafely.

Simultaneously RAF and south African bombers attacked enemy shipping off the north Africa coast and bombarded grounded Axis warplanes at airdromes in the El Daba area west of Elamein.

A slight increase in enemy fighter plane activity was noted.

There were no developments on the land front yesterday, the British said, though patrols were active during the preceding night.

U. S. Tank Crews Ready.

CAIRO, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Forward groups of United States army tank crews have virtually completed advance training in the Egyptian desert and are ready to go into action with General Grant fighting machines.

Other groups are getting additional training in the methods of desert warfare.

SENATE COMMITTEE REJECTS AMENDMENT TO COMMUNITY TAXES

TEXAS AND SEVEN OTHER STATES WILL CONTINUE OLD PAYMENT PLAN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—(AP)—The senate finance committee rejected today a proposed amendment to the new revenue bill which would have required the payment of taxes by the recipient on all earned income in the eight community property states.

The action came on a vote of 11 to 4.

"Then that means the community property states can rest at ease for at least another year?" a newsman asked Chairman George (D-Va.)

"That means they can rest at ease," responded George.

He estimated that inclusion of the provision would have added approximately $85,000,000 in new revenue, based upon the income tax rates set by the house.

Committee members said the proposal would have had the effect of preventing a man from dividing his earned income with his wife for tax purposes, thus avoiding the increased rate of a higher bracket.

Eight states have community tax laws—Texas, California, Louisiana, Arizona, New Mexico, Nevada, Idaho and Washington.

The committee decided to close its open hearings on the revenue bill this week, probably on Thursday.

George said it then would take a week's recess, and begin its executive deliberations two weeks from today.

Gore Before Committee.

Former Senator T. P. Gore of Oklahoma, who sponsored the principle in 1918 as a member of the finance committee, urged the group this morning to retain the current 27 1-2 per cent depletion allowance on oil and gas wells for taxation purposes.

He declared that change to a cost depletion method, as recommended by the treasury deportment, would bring in about $80,000,000 more a year—"only enough money to run this war 18 hours and 13 minutes."

Treasury officials have contended that the flat percentage allowance represented a special privilege for the oil and mining industries.

The blind former senator, representing the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association and the Independent Petroleum Association of America, declared the tax credit was "essential to the success of the petroleum industry if not to its survival."

Under the present law, which the house declined to change, 27 1-2 per cent of the gross income of the property may be written off annually to make up for exhaustion of the deposits, provided that the allowance does not exceed 50 per cent of the net income.

The committee started its last week of public hearings on the new revenue bill shortly after Chairman George (D-Ga) forecast to reporters that the senate would take some action to simplify collection of a proposed 5 per cent tax on wages, interest and dividends.

Gore told the finance committee that Canada had a depletion allowance of 30 per cent.

ADMIRAL KING SAYS AMERICANS SEEKING DRIVE JAPANESE OUT

ONE U. S. CRUISER SUNK AND OTHER NAVAL UNITS DAMAGED IN FIGHT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Admiral Ernest J. King, announced today that American forces had landed in the southeastern Solomon Islands with the purpose of driving out the Japanese and permanently occupying this strategic area in the southern Pacific.

The announcement was made in a statement which said that "heavy fighting is still in progress" and that the American units engaged so far have had at least one cruiser sunk and two cruisers, two destroyers and one transport damaged.

Information as to damage inflicted on the enemy is incomplete, King reported, but includes "a large number of planes" as well as surface units "put out of action."

King's statement:

"(1) Offensive operations by United States naval and other forces, looking to the occupation of Islands in the Tulagi area in the southeasterly Solomon Islands, have now been underway for about three days.

"(2) The operations are under the immediate command of Vice Admiral Ghornsley and under the general control of Admiral Nimitz. Certain of the forces under General MacArthur are cooperating.

Seek to Expel Japs.

"(3). The objective of the current operations is to expel the Japanese from the Tulago area and to make use of that area for our own purposes. The enemy have been in process of consolidating their positions, in which their purpose has been not only to deny them to us but to use them as a base of offensive aperations against our positions which cover the line of communications to Australia and New Zealand.

"(4) An initial surprise was effected and planned landings accomplished. The enemy has counterattacked with rapidity and vigor. Heavy fighting is still in progress.

"Our operating forces are employing all available communications in the conduct of the operations, so that our information is incomplete, but it appears that we have had at least one cruiser sunk and two cruisers, two destroyers an done transpot damaged.

"Likewise, information as to the extent of damage inflicted on the enemy is incomplete but includes a large number of enemy planes that have been destroyed and surface units put out of action.

First Offensive Action.

"(5) This operation in the Tulagi area is significant in that it marks our first assumption of the initiative and of the offensive. All of the previous operations in the Pacific, however, successful, have been essentially defense in character.

"(6) It should be understood that the operation now under way is one of the most complicated and difficult in warfare. Considerable losses, such as are inherent in any offensive operation, must be expected as the price to be paid for the hard-won experience which is essential to the attainment of far-reaching results."

Admiral Robert Lee Ghormly, 58, is commander of United States naval forces in the south Pacific. He is one of the navy's better known officers and has been in his present job with headquarters in New Zealand since last spring.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, 57, is commander in chief of the United States Pacific fleet and as such is responsible for naval operations extending from the Bering Sea into the southernmost reaches of the Pacific. Nimitz' most recent previous operation was the battle of Midway where he was in general control of the task forces which engaged the Japanese assault fleet.

GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Powerful bomber formations of the allied Southwest Pacific command rained sledge-hammer blows on enemy bases in the New Guinea New Britain area, it was reported today, as air and sea forces locked in battle with the Japanese for the mountainous Solomon Islands and their strategic waters.

There were also unelaborated reports that allied land forces were in action.

Official reports from allied headquarters were meager and extremely cautious at the end of the fourth day of the first United Nations attempt to wrest the initiative from the Japanese in the Southwest Pacific.

But observers minimized the accuracy of Tokyo broadcast claims to have sunk or damaged a large

IMPORTANT FRONT

There are fronts and fronts, all over the world, but the big and important front for Americans is right here at home.

The home front needs men, women and materials on the production lines. It needs other things, too. Courage, for instance, cheer, determination.

Above all, it needs self-control. Don't fuss and fume about trifles. Get grim and turn the hand to the task it can do.

Motive is everything.

Who drives slowly to save a tire for human freedom saves rubber and works for a better humanity.

Don't do without things in a spirit of smallness. Choose the constructive attitude. Buy the bond in a spirit of largeness instead.

Think about the fronts a little. What do the soldiers do? They prepare with meticulous care and go into the fray with a cheer. Yours is the important front behind the front. Do your best on it.

What will you wish a year from now that you had done today?

FORTY AND EIGHT

The government's labor standard policy of the forty-eight hour week was subscribed to by the War and Navy Departments, the Maritime Commission, the Public Health Service, the Manpower Commission, the War Production Board, the Departments of Commerce and of Labor. This is a formidable group to be committed to a single policy. The standards, as outlined by the OWI, are as follows:

1. For wartime production the eigh-hour day and the 48-hour week approximate the best working schedule for sustained efficiency in most industrial operations.
2. One scheduled day of rest for the individual in approximately every seven should be a universal and invariable rule.
3. A 30-minute meal period is desirable.
4. Vacations are conducive to sustained production.

This is not law, but the statement of a policy. These provisions have been discovered to give the best sustained production capacity. Men can work 60 to 65 hours per week, sometimes more, for short periods. But these periods are followed by manifestations of intense fatigue, often leading to accident. In short, the long hours do not pay, either for the man or for the general production.

Sustained production is the great need. The man who works his eight hours a day, six days a week, with his seventh day of rest, with his good period of sleep following the job, with an occasional vacation in which he sees and thinks about something not connected with his job is the man who can keep the war production going until the war is won. He gets his basic pay for the forty hours, time-and-a-half for the extra eight, and is not tempted to stray to other plants.

This is likely to be a long war. It is certainly a war exigent of manpower in the production plants. The man who works hard and well and stops in time gives the best results all along the line.

"Unions Rap Wage Interference." O. K., but it still takes two sides to make a bargain.

MOTHER EXCUSE

"No one to stay with the children," she said;
'No one to see them tucked safely in bed.
No one to trust for the time we'd be gone.
No one to leave worth depending upon.
So give up the pleasure and write them to say
We're sorry, but really we can't get away.
"Invited to Dinner. 'Twould surely be nice,
But not," she remarked, "at anxiety's price;
There's no one to come with the children to stay
With their aunts out of town and their grandmas away.
So write them we can't and the reason they'll know.
When the children are older to parties we'll go."
She'd rather stay home and be satisfied quite
That her babies were in bed and asleep for the night
Than to go to a party and pass the hours by
And wonder if Jennie downstairs heard them cry.
So wait till they grow awhile longer we must,
For there's no one to stay with the children she'll trust.

UNCONQUERABLE RUSSIA

Russia cannot be conquered, cannot be ruined. For a thousand years of recorded history Russia has been fighting off invaders, sometimes absorbing them and making them behave, throwing the leaders, often, out of the windows onto the points of lances, hanging the corpses in public places where those who see may be warned.

Russia cannot be starved out. It has endured famines beyond the imagination of anyone in the western world. It has endured serfdom and miseries beyond belief.

But Russia rises again, struggling always for food enough, for warmth and shelter, but never satisfied with these. Russians are satisfied only when they are fighting for freedom and for growth in the things which make human beings men and not animals. They have had a taste of these in the last few years. Nothing can throw them back into barbarism.

Russia can suffer greatly. It has suffered before, and risen stronger for its suffering. It can endure hunger and thirst, war and devastation. But Russia cannot be conquered.

The Nazis may think they have the Ukraine, with its coal, its steel and its nearness to oil. But can they keep it? History says No.

The Nazis have overpowered and looted France, Holland, Czechoslovakia. But they have not conquered them, nor ever will. The day of reckoning is on the way. It will not be a happy day for Hitler nor for those Germans who have greedily or supinely let him keep his power.

SECOND FRONT STUFF

Much of the radio and columnist clamor about that Second Front begins to sound like pre-election conversation in a presidential year. The voices which demand the Second Front at once, whether it's wise or not, want to be able to say later that they demanded the Second Front—and got it. The ones who urge quiet and trust in leaders want to be able to say later that they upheld the leaders in their timing of the Second Front.

One thing about it seems quite clear — everybody in the world is thinking about it and modifying thought and action by consideration of it. Hitler knows it is coming and is desperately trying to get to the oil of the Caucasus first.

Anne O'Hare McCormick in the New York Times has a clear and cheering word. She believes that what is going on now is the process of coming to agreement, not only of the parts of the American high command, but between American and British general staffs. The effort is to relieve Russia before it is too late.

"The British cannot afford another failure. The American nightmare is the problem of transport: how to assure a steady flow of reinforcements and supplies to a combat force in action."

But Hull's broadcast, she says, "was intended as a promise to the captive nations that relief is on the way. As interpreted in the White House, it means: 'Hold on, We are coming!'"

This interpretation seems to make sense. The continued bombing of the gateways to the continent also points to plans for greater action before long.

CORSICANA SOLDIER NOW ON MANEUVERS GETS PROMOTION; REAL WESTERN ATMOSPHERE

ON MANEUVERS IN THE CAROLINAS, August 7.—(Spl.)—Milton L. Jackson of Corsicana, Texas, has advanced from the grade of private first class to staff sergeant within two months and is now participating with his Texas Division Field Artillery battalion in giant Carolina maneuvers.

Sergeant Jackson, the son of Mrs. Fred Jackson of 320 West Fourth Avenue, came into the Army with an artillery battery of the old national guard from Corsicana. He made private first class in June, 1940, and on Dec. 1, 1940, was rated a 3rd class specialist. On June 1, 1942 he was made a technician sergeant, and then on Aug. 1, 1942, a staff sergeant.

As a civilian he was a student in Hillsboro Junior College.

Western Atmosphere.

This week the Texas Division deep in the heart of Carolina, has taken on a real western atmosphere. Discarding the usual blue arm-bands, they have been issued for the first time—red bandanas, now being worn true to the Texas style, dictated by their former cowhand friends.

To an artillery first sergeant, Troy Cooley of Corsicana, Texas, a red neck-scarf is no novelty. A former cowpuncher in Colorado and bronc buster in several Texas Rodeos, the sergeant is a pastmaster at the art of wearing them, and advocates the Gene Autry style of knotting the scarf.

Other former cowhands with this artillery unit, are Private First Class Woodrow Keener of Merkel, Texas, Corporal Jack Paul of Kerens, Texas, ex-rodeo performer, and Private Walker B. Shelton of Lampassas, who holds top record of 15.2 seconds for calf roping.

These Texans are real artists in pacing the style of neckerchief wear. Private Sheldon prefers the old William S. Hart style as most practical for the prevaling Carolina dust, while Private Keener patterns his style after cowboy star John Wayne by letting the loose ends drape over the shoulders.

By replacing these men's steel helmets with ten-gallon hats, a pair of spurs and watching them file away from the mess line to squat on their heels and eat, a real Texas cow camp could easily be visualized.

Near Japan.

Strange as it may seem, the boys of the Texas Division are maneuvering only 192 miles from Japan!

A sharp look on the map will prove that it's a very small village in the westermost edge of the state—"Japan, North Carolina."

Lost Texas soldiers in the Carolinas found a Shanri-La in the foothills a few miles outside of Jefferson in an abandoned gold mine shaft that dates back to the early 40's of the last century. Nestled in its lofty position, the mine, situated atop a hill, is replete with souvenirs of another day.

For the first time in the field under conditions akin to actual combat, vehicles of a (Texas) Division are being equipped with synthetic rubber tires on a trial basis. Under the direction of Captain Ernest S. Rambo, the automotive officer, only a limited number will be initially tried.

The new tires will be placed on trucks, jeeps and other types of Army vehicles. Their wear will be constantly watched as will their ability to take the rough use that driving over rocks, stumps, and unpaved roads entails.

The experiment is being watched eagerly by the various motor officers of the division. These officers, together with their staffs and drivers will assist the automotive department in making notations on their serviceability for general Army use.

Exploding Watermelons.

Exploding watermelons are a new wrinkle in modern warfare, but they provide excellent burglar insurance!

Discovering that his assigned bivouac area was adjacent to a watermelon patch, the commander of an Engineer battalion from a Texas division planned to forestall possible night raids. With the cooperation of the worried farmer who owned the patch, the commander ordered "booby-traps" placed beneath several of the largest melons so that when the melon was touched, a light explosion would be set off nearby.

Watermelon-hungry engineers spotted the patch as soon as the battalion moved in and mouths began to water. Under cover of night, raiding parties moved stealthily into the field.

One soldier outdistanced the pack, reached the objective and grabbed for the prize.

Soon a very startled private stood draped in pieces of pulp and rind, while his buddies fled.

The Engineers are now buying the melons at prevailing prices.

IMPORTANT NEW INSTRUCTIONS—REVISED JULY 1942

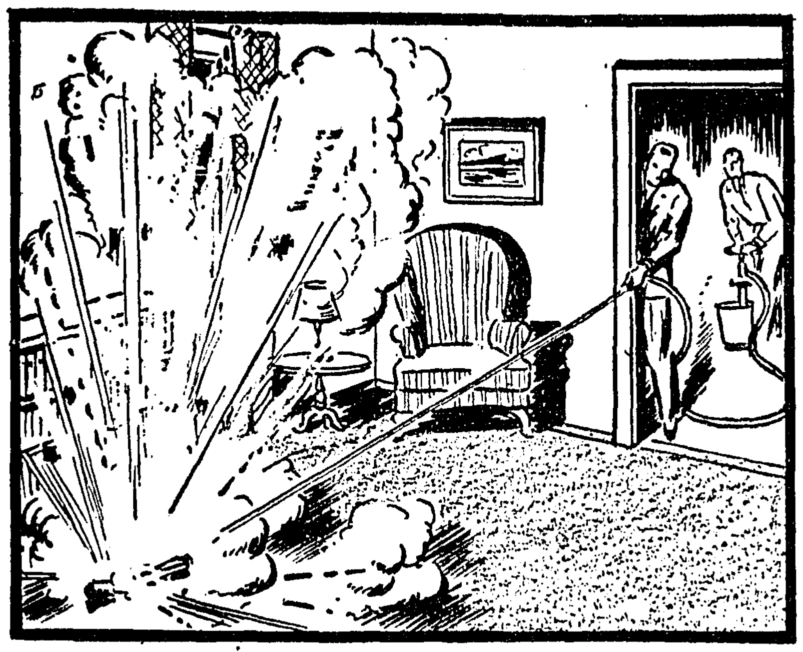
How to Fight FIRE BOMBS

OFFICIAL INSTRUCTIONS
U. S. Office
of Civilian Defense

These new instructions are based on exhaustive research by technicians of OCD and the Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. Army. They represent changes now adopted also by British officials after careful analysis of the results of both this and the old method during actual air raids. Both American and British tests prove that a jet of water, as illustrated below, will knock out the fire bomb in less than one minute—before major fires can get started. Fire (not the bomb) is the chief danger, and a jet of water is the best weapon. Respect the fire bomb but do not fear it.

BRING YOUR FIRE-FIGHTING EQUIPMENT TO THE SCENE QUICKLY

The small magnesium bomb, which is dropped in great numbers, will go through any ordinary roof. Store your equipment where it can be reached easily, and keep it ready for instant use.



SHOOT A JET OF WATER ON THE BOMB AT ONCE

Take cover behind a door, chair, or other furniture, if you can, when you do this. The jet knocks the bomb out quickly. There will be a burst of white flame, and a scattering of molten metal, most of which will be driven away from you by the force of the jet.

QUENCH PROMPTLY THE REMAINS OF BOMB AND ANY OTHER FIRES

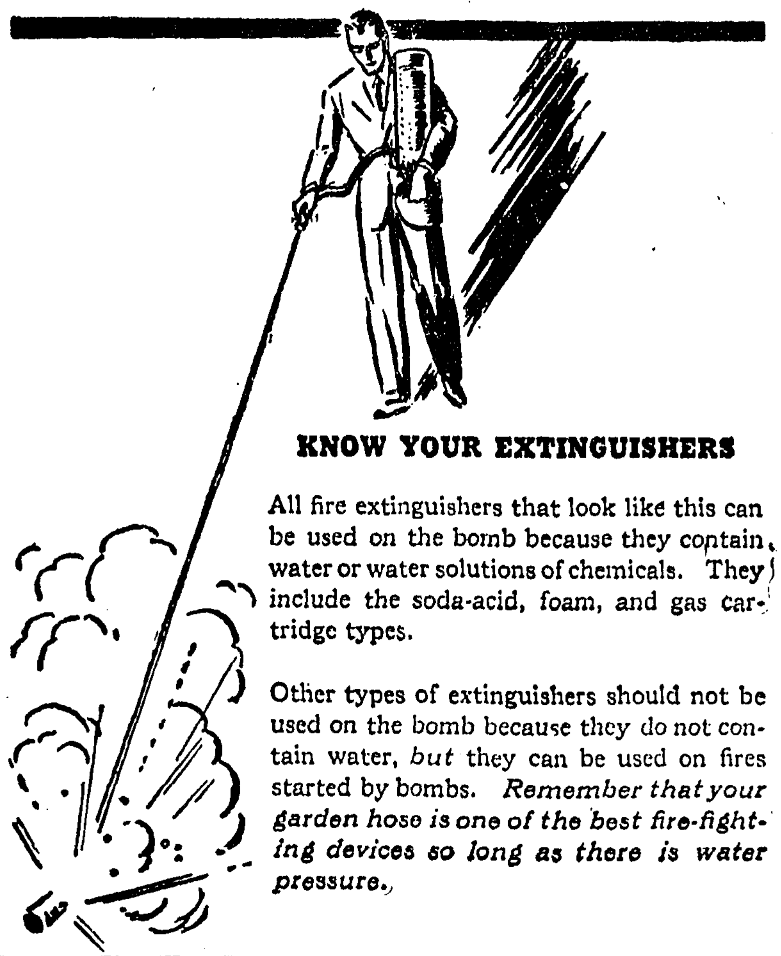
If any small fires are started the jet will put these out easily. Within a short time you will be free to attack any other bombs which may have fallen nearby. Be absolutely sure all the fire is out before you leave.

THE PUMP TANK HOLDS ENOUGH WATER TO PUT OUT TWO BOMBS WHEN JET IS USED

This is the 4-gallon pump tank extinguisher which the Office of Civilian Defense will distribute in target areas to the air raid warden service. The tank can be refilled while the pump is being used.

JET MAY PREVENT ACTION OF BURSTER

Some bombs have a small burster attachment. When the jet is used promptly, the bomb may be destroyed before the charge goes off.



KNOW YOUR EXTINGUISHERS

All fire extinguishers that look like this can be used on the bomb because they contain water or water solutions of chemicals. They include the soda-acid, foam, and gas cartridge types.

Other types of extinguishers should not be used on the bomb because they do not contain water, but they can be used on fires started by bombs. Remember that your garden hose is one of the best fire-fighting devices so long as there is water pressure.

USE SAND ONLY IF A BOMB FALLS WHERE IT CANNOT START A FIRE OR IF WATER IS NOT AVAILABLE

This can be done by dropping a bag of sand over the bomb, or by the shovel-and-bucket technique.

THE FOUR FREEDOMS GIVES OBJECTIVES OF UNITED NATIONS

PAMPHLETS RELEASED CLARIFYING IDEALS FOR WHICH ALLIES FIGHT

WASHINGTON, August 10.—(Spl.)—Full discussion of United Nation's peace aims is a powerful weapon in the winning of the war, Elmer Davis, Director of the Office of War Information, said in releasing a pamphlet entitled "The Four Freedoms."

Issued during the anniversary week of the signing of the Atlantic Charter, the pamphlet clarifies the esssential freedoms for which the United Nations fight.

In a statement accompanying release of "The Four Freedoms," Mr. Davis said: "Our job is to win the war as swiftly as possible. But the tremendous effort that will be needed to win it will be made the more ready if the American people fully understand the objectives for which we fight. We are fighting not merely against something but for something—for a free world for those peoples who, as Secretary of State Hull has said, understand 'that enjoyment of liberty is the fruit of willingness to fight, suffer and die for it—'. 'The Four Freedoms', and the discussions to which it will contribute, should prove a useful guide toward the better understanding of the world toward which we strove."

Freedom For All.

Axis nations, says the pamphlet, "promise a world in which the conquered peoples will live out their lives in the service if their masters." The United Nations, it continues, "plan a world in which men stand straight and walk free, free not of all human trouble, but free of the fear of despotic power, free to develop as individuals, free to conduct and shape their affairs."

"We and our allies," it says, "are fighting today not merely to defend an honorable past and old slogans and faiths, but to construct a still more honorable and rewarding future. Fighting men, coming back from the war, will not be satisfied with a mere guarantee of dull security—they will expect to find useful work and a vigorous life."

Summarizing each of the four freedoms, the 16-page OWI pamphlet says:

FREEDOM OF SPEECH—"To live free and a man must speak openly—gag him and he becomes either servile or full of cankers. Free government is, then, the most realistic kind of government, for it not only assumes that a man has something on his mind, but concedes his right to say it. It permits him to talk—not without fear of contradiction, but without fear of punishment."

Religian.

FREEDOM OF RELIGION—"We of the nations united in war, among whom all the great religions are represented, see a triumphant peace by which all races will continue the belief in man, the belief in his elusive and untouchable spirit, and in the solid worth of human life."

FREEDOM FROM WANT—"Prosperous times have been enjoyed in certain regions of the world at certain periods in history, but local prosperity was usually achieved at the expense of some other region, which was being impoverished, and the spectre of impending war hung over all. Now, the industrial changes of the last 150 years and the new prospect implicit in the words, 'United Nations', have given meaning to the phrase, 'Freedom from Want,' and rendered it not only possible but necessary."

FREEDOM FROM WAR—"Aggressive war, sudden armed attack, secret police, these must be forever circumvented—the first move to free people from fear, is to achieve a peaceable world which has been deprived of its power to destroy itself. This can only be accomplished by disarming the aggressors and keeping them disarmed. Last time they were disarmed, but they were not prevented from rearming. This time they will be disarmed in truth."

THE PRICE OF LOVELINESS

Some women seem to have just everything, now don't they? Take Jeanette MacDonald (MGM star soon to be seen in "Cairo") for instance: a beautiful face, gorgeous red hair, magnificent teeth, and a lovely figure. Then, added to to all that she has one of the finest voices we hear today. She has success, happiness, a chraming home, devoted friends, and enough money to satisfy all her whims. Now what more could anyone want or have?

But the trouble with too many of us is that we would like all these things—but are unwilling to pay the price. Oh, yes, there is a price—everything has a price. And if you are willing to pay it, you can usually have what you want to buy. It is true that some people get a better start, but without constantly working there is no improvement—and it is the steady improvement that counts, you know.

You can have a lovely figure—but you must diet and exercise for it. You can have a lovely skin, but you must care for it night and morning, and protect it throughout the day. You can have wonderful hair, but you must brush, and feed, and exercise it, too. You can improve your voice with practice, too; but perhaps your success lies in an entirely different field. If so, you can achieve success in that field, no matter what it is, but you must apply yourself diligently, learning all there is to know, and finding out new things all the time. And personal charm and business success most always add up to happiness and a charming home, with devoted friends.

You must be willing to give, to get what you want. Give of yourself, your help and encouragement to those less calable. Lend a hand, and do a favor where you can; go out of your way to make someone more happy—and this will bring happiness and contentment to you.

end the power of "political pirates" in this state.

In his 6:45 a. m. radio talk, the first of nine speeches he will make until election Aug. 22, the senator chided James V. Allred for "busily writing himself a new platform."

O'Daniel said the he, on the other hand, was standing on the platform he urged in the first campaign because every plank of it was sound.

"There are no new issues," he said. "It looks like there are so many political termites in my yesman opponent's camp that they ate up all the planks."

He assailed what he said were old-line politicians and bureaucrats, charging they were coming from Washington to tell Texans how to vote. He said they were holing up in air-conditioned hotels for their work and hiring great numbers of workers to campaign via telephone for his opponent.

He referred to this as subterfuge.

Allred Pledges Aid to Ranchmen

BOWIE, Aug. 10.—(AP)—James V. Allred in a campaign speech here this morning pledged to help ranchmen solve their ranch transportation problems and to seek a reduction of federal farm and ranch loan interest to 3 per cent.

Speaking in the town of his birth, Allred again denounced the isolationists, and reminded his townsfolk that President Roosevelt's efforts to speed the arming of this nation brought denunciation from "senate isolationists who called him a warmonger and would-be dictator."

The fact that Americans died at Bataan without sufficient food and medical supplies, the candidate said, is "a testimonial to the policy of isolationism."

Entering his second week of campaigning in his run-off campaign against Senator W. Lee O'-Daniel, the speaker declared there also are "civilian casualties" of this war, and the Texas farmer is one of them. Another, he said, was the little business man.

Advocating that cotton be pegged at not less than 25 cents for duration of the war, Allred proposed also a cotton charter, a plan to secure for the farmers of Texas and the Southland a full measure of return for their labor.

Why Not Cotton Charter?

"We have an Atlantic charter of human liberties to serve as a foundation for the peace. Why not a cotton charter? Instead of changing entirely to other crops or trying to develop so many new ones, why not develop additional uses for our cotton?" he asked. "Let's try to develop it to where our farmers will still raise all the cotton they can and help them find a market for it."

The government may also find a war-time resource in the little business men who have been forced to liquidate or are now faced with going out of business, Allred said. "These are practical men and they should be used in place of theorists wherever possible in the war effort. The government should provide employment or some form of security for them, for theirs is an important contribution to our way of life."

Patterson for Jester.

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Bryan (Pat) Patterson, who ran third in the July primary for the unexpired term on the state railroad commission, announced today he would support eauford Jester of Corsicana in the run-off election Aug. 22.

MITCHELL BOYD IS NAMED CHAIRMAN OF JAYCEE RECRUITING

GLADEWATER, Aug. 10.—(Spl.)—Mitchell Boyd of the Corsicana Junior Chamber of Commerce has been named chairman of the Corsicana sub-district by John Ben Shepperd, state Jaycee president, to carry out the program for recruiting air corps cadets as adopted by the Texas Junior Chamber of Commerce in co-operation with Col. C. K. Rhinehart, commanding officer of the Dallas recruiting and induction district.

Boyd will organize the towns in Corsicana sub-district which includes Frost, Blooming Grove, Corsicana, Kerens, Dawson, Coolidge, Wortham, Fairfield, Mexia, Teague, Thornton and Kosse.

Boyd will organize and set up recruiting information centers in the various towns in this sub-district even though they do not have junior chambers of commerce. All types of civic and service clubs will be asked to assist in this important war program.

Plans for the state-wide drive were made at a recent meeting in Dallas when state Jaycee officials met with Col. C. K. Rhinehart and Lt. Col. Frederic W. Steffen, public relations officer of the Dallas district. In this meeting Colonel Rhinehart appointed Colonel Steffen as the co-ordinator between the army and the Texas Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The state organization plan includes the appointment of an executive vice president in charge of the entire program, this being Oscar B. Clark of Kerrville, and the appointment of chairman of each sub-district in the Dallas district. The chairman of the sub-district will in turn ask each local junior chamber of commerce in his district to appoint chairmen who will assist in the recruiting drive.

"The part of the Texas Junior Chamber of Commerce in this work will not be actual recruiting, but will be to carry out the program of stimulating interest among the young men between the ages of 18 and 26 to join the army air corps," President Shepperd said.

TEXANS AT CAMP ROBERTS TO GATHER FOR "TEXAS NIGHT"

CAMP ROBERTS, Calif., Aug. 10.—(Spl.)—Tall tales of Texas will be swapped across the camp fire when former residents of the Lone Star State, now trainees at the Field Artillery Replacement Training Center here, gather for a "Texas Night" celebration, swim and barbecue August 12.

Realizing that Texans might long for some of the hospitable atmosphere of their home state, officials of the Paso Robles USO have planned an event which will be the best substitute for an actual party at home.

Only enlisted men who formerly resided in the state will be eligible to attend the event. The young men from Texas will swim in the USO open-air pool, then gather for an old-fashioned barbecue, song and talk-fest in the approved Texan manner.

The folks at home will be given an opportunity to do their part also, according to an announcement by the Special Service Office of the Field Artillery Replacement Training Center. The office will act as a clearing house for all gifts, cigarettes, candy and other items which residents of the state would like to send their "sons" in Uncle Sam's armed forces.

Gifts addressed to "Texas Night." Special Service Office. F. A. R.T.C., Camp Roberts, California, will be distributed to the Texans during the event

"Operations are progressing favorably," he declared late Sunday.

A communique issued in Washington late yesterday said "considerable enemy resistance has been encountered and it is still too early to announce results or to estimate either our own or enemy losses."

A Japanese communique, familiar in its extravagant claims of American and Australian warship losses, said Japanese naval s well as air forces were in action in defense of the Island bases, sinking or damaging 28 allied warships and transports against ramaging of only two Japanese cruisers.

However, unlike its account of the Rleutian foray in which it claimed that a strong United Sttaes naval force had been beaten off, Emperor Hirohito's high command made no assertion that the allied attack on the Solomon area had been repulsed.

Weak Link In Jap Chain.

A Japanese news agency account, quoting Hokyo naval quarters, appeared to be clearing the way for an acknowledgement of reverses. It said the Americans had picked on a weak link in the Japanese chain of advance bases.

Admiral Nimitz said the attack on the Lulgai area in the south-eastern Solomons, 600 miles across the Coral sea from Australia, was being pressed by sea and air against Japanese land-bases, planes and garrisons.

Although allied sources made no specific mention of transports in the attacking fleet, Admiral Nimitz' reference to enemy land garrisons suggested the possibility that American or Australian troops might have been put ashore and that land fighting might be in progress.

It was at Tulagi, on Florida Island, that the Japanese assembled the invasion armada which was smashed by land and carrierlbased bombers three months ago in the Battle of the Coral Sea.

Land and Aerial Activty.

The fight for the Solomons touched off land and aerial activity along the whole vast barrier of islands north and northeast of Australia as Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces lashed out at the invaders.

His communique said allied ground patrols inflicted casualties on the Japanese in skirmishes in the Kokoda area on the Papuan peninsula of New Guinea midway between Japanese bases near Buna and the allied base at Port Moresby.

Attacking by day and night, allied bombers battered the key Japanese base at Rabual, on New Britain Island, shooting idown five zero fighters with a loss of a single bomber; raided Gasmata, also in New Britain; and inflicted heavy damage ashore and to shipping in the harbor of Salamaua, the enemy's most important base in New Guinea. A Japanese supply ship was set aflame there, buildings were blown up and anti-aircraft positions knocked out.

A Washington communique gave no new information on the operations of the naval task force which bombarded Japanese ships and shore bases at Kiska, and the full results of the atack probably will not be known until the task force returns from the Aleutians.

German Broadcast.

A German broadcast of Japanese accounts of the sea and air fight in the Solomons said Japanese bombers and torpedo planes attacked the Allied fleet in the Coral sea as it approached the islands, and reported that Japanese naval formations entered the fight last Friday night.

"The action continued with undiminished violence all night and also on the following day (Sunday), and is not yet ended, according to the latest reports here," the broadcast said.

In India, where British government faced its gravest test and the Indian war effort hung in the balance, the rank and file of Gandhi's congress party responded eagerly to his call for "do or die" resistance to British authority, forgetting or ignoring his admonition against violence.

Twenty-three were taken to hospitals after police fired on turbulent crowds in Bombay, where still others were shot yesterday, and two were wounded when police fired on another group in Poona.

Lindbergh Foreign Home Pillaged.

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts) Aug. 10.—(AP)—A German radio report from Paris said today that Illiec Island, home of Charles A. Lindbergh, off the Brittany coast of France, has been pillaged by "thieves," who removed even the furniture from the villa.

lem-Hindu riots which have followed previous civil disobedience campaigns. These riots often were the bloodiest and the most difficult to suppress.

Throughout the city troops were stationed in groups ranging from a dozen soldiers to a full platoon.

They evidently were being shown largely for moral effect however, for they were not participating with the police in breaking up disturbances. But they carried their rifles.

The curfew from 7 p. m. to daylight plus rain kept the city quiet last night, but the mid-morning saw a renewal of the disturbances.

Car Object of Shots.

In a two-hour drive through the troubled area my car was shot at several times. Rowdies threw bottles, pots, rocks and anything they could hastily sieze from stands of nearby shops.

The windows of the automobile were smashed and I as showered with glass fragments. The car was dented in half a dozen places but I received only a few stinging pelts from the broken glass.

One Indian, detecting that I was an American, shouted to the crowd to stop, but he could not make himself heard.

The police finally managed to force the car through the crowd and I escaped by racing down side streets amid catcalls, shouting and further attempts to halt the automobile by throwing human or other barricades across the road.

Leaders Arrested.

Though deprived of leadership by the swift arrest of Mahandas K. Gandhi and his chief lieutenants, the rank and file of the party responded eagerly to a call for "do or die" resistance to British rule, forgetting or ignoring Gandhi's own admonitions against violence in their ardor.

Serious was the threat of strikes in vital war industries. Trading in all Bombay markets was at a standstill.

At least 149 persons were arrested yesterday in Bombay, where police resorted to tear gas and revolvers to quell disorders after they had failed to disperse rioters with bamboo staves.

An official announcement last night said casualties in Bombay included two rioters killed and 19 injured, one police officer killed and 45 policemen injured.

SOLOMONS

number of United States and Australian warships and transports.

They also emphatically questioned Tokyo radio assertions that their Solomon island defenders had incurred the loss of only seven planes and damage to two cruisers in the first day and night.

Heartened by Reports.

While eagerly awaiting news of the outcome of the struggle for jungle-covered islands under the equatorial sky 600 miles distant from this continent, Australian headquarters were heartened by reports from advanced bases describing the vigor with which day and night air attacks were being pressed home against the bases upon which the Japanese depend for reinforcements.

Rabaul in New Britain, a crossroads for Japanese forces arriving from their mandated islands and fanning out to the southwest Pacific, Gasmata on the South coast of New Britain, and Lae and Salamau on the northeast coast of New Guinea were bearing the full brunt of these aerial onslaughts.

A roaring air battle took place over Rabual in one of these attacks Aug. 8 when 20 zeros rose to ward off big four-motored flying fortresses which dropped low to blast the airdrome with 2,000-pound and numerous 100-pound explosives.

Seven of the fighters were shot down, and the raiders believed many of the others crashed when they attempted to land on the bomb-riddled runways.

Allies Still Hold Initiative.

Latest word on the continuing action in the Solomons, while scant, indicated the initiative remained in the hands of the American fleet and other Allied forces which joined the battle Friday.

This information was relayed from Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, late yesterday by Admiral Chester W. Nibitz, U. S. Pacific unval commander. He gave no details as to the scope of the area under attack or the extent of the operations, but all signs were that the drive might be developing into a major offensive operation.

Admiral Nimitz said the attack, on the Tulagi area in the Southeast part of the Solomons, 600 miles off Northeastern Australia, was being pressed by sea and air against Japanese land-based planes and garrisons and that "the operations are progressing favorably" despite enemy opposition.

Enemy Resistance.

A brief communique issued in Washington late yesterday said that "considerable enemy resistance has been encountered and it is still too early to announce results or to estimate either our own or enemy losses."

The Japanese—without confirmation from any Allied source—broadcast claims from Tokyo that they had sunk 22 Allied warships and transports and damaged more than six others. These enemy calims were considered in the light of their fanciful reports on results of the Midway and Coral Sea battles—both stunning Japanese defeats.

Allied sources failed to mention the presence of any transports in the attacking fleet but Admiral Nimitz's reference to enmy land garrisons was interpreted as intimating that the operation was amphibious. This suggested the possibility that land fighting might be in progress on the Solomons.

Or the Allies might have beat the enemy to the draw to thwart another invasion attempt aimed at Australia. It was at Tulago, on the fringe of the Coral Sea, that the Japanese assembled the invasion armada subsequently smashed in those waters.

No Mention of Solomons.

Today's communique from General MacArthur's headquarters, without mentioning the Solomon Islands battle itself, reported Sunday attacks by Allied planes on three enemy bases in New Guinea and New Britain.

A spokesman said these raids, which were heavy in the past 24 hours, were aimed at tying up Japanese aircraft and preventing them from engaging in the action in the Solomons.

The Allied bombers struck both by day and night at the key Japanese base of Rabaul, in New Britain, shooting down five enemy Zero fighters with the loss of one Allied bomber; raided Gasmata, alos in New Britain, and inflicted new and heavy destruction at Salamaua, New Guinea.

At Salamaua is the enemy's most important base in New Guinea while Rabaul is the chief Japanese base in New Britain, a part of the Bismarck archipelago.

Attacks Effective.

The complete absence of Japanese bombing activity in the northwestern sector and the limiting of activity in the northeast to defensive aerial fighting emphasized the effectiveness of the Allied attacks in support of the Solomon Islands battle.

The communique said Allied ground patrols inflicted casualties upon the Japanese in the Kokoda area, on the Papuan peninsula, but this action was believed here to have been light.

Coinciding with the attack on the Solomons, a task force of the U. S. Pacific fleet went into action thousands of miles to the north, bombarding Japanese ships and shore bases at Kiska, one of three enemy-occupied Aleutian Islands stretching southwest of Alaska.

A Washington communique indicated this attack was over but results probably will not be known until the attacking force returns to its base, possibly two weeks.

(Japanese Imperial headquarters claimed today that Japanese naval units "beat off a strong enemy naval force which appeared Aug. 8 in Aleutian waters," a claim that was without any confirmation.)

THE WAR TODAY

to our sea communications with Australia and New Zealand, but they provide the enemy with an enviable base for an attack on the Australian mainland.

Whether this offensive will develop into a major operation probably depends on what success meets our ilitial efforts. The chances are that our command is figuring on ousting the Japs entirely from this whole group of islands if things go well. That would be a great achievement and one which would create a threat against the whole structure of the Nipponese island conquests.

May Be Answer to Appeals.

Apart from the strategic considerations, this offensive may provide a most useful answer to the Chinese appeals for allied initiative in the Orient, and the Australian fears of invasion. A success there certainly would do much for morale at a time when Britain and America are having to devote most of their energy to meeting the German onslaught against Russia.

There are several sound reasons also for our drive to clean the Japs out of the far western Aleutians where they have been trying, apparently with some degree of success, to establish bases. Of course, any Japanese occupation in the Aleutians is a threat against Alaska and our West cost. These islands also lie across our communications with Siberia, and our nearest air-route to Japan. If the Nipponese were to attack Russia, a base in the islands would be of great value, and the loss of their toe hold might further discourage the Japs from any adventure against Siberia.

The position of the Russians in the batle north of the Maikop oil region is increasingly serious, as the Hitlerites continue to drive forward with their great weight of mechanical equipment. The most hopeful indication from the allied standpoint is that the Reds continue to fight an orderly withdrawal, without annihilation of any great units of troops. There has been no disorder reported, and that is all to the good.

To the Voters of Navarro County

In the Kerens Tribune of August 7, 1942, under the head of "To the Voters of Powell, Bazette, Rural Shade and Kerens" appears this statement:

"As you know the run-off race for the legislature from this county is between Pat H. Geraughty and myself. I feel that I am better qualified for the place than he. As you know my life's study has been governmental affairs. I know that my knowledge of public economy is superior."

I was somewhat surprised to see that statement. My opponent and I have been life-long friends.

..I was raised at Bazette. You know me. I obtained my education the hard way. I think that I have been fairly successful with it. As to which one of us is the better qualified, I'll leave you to decide.

He further states: "He has been paid more money by this county for service as district clerk and magistrate than the average man ever makes. Still he needs help to live. If he does not manage his own business to save some, how will he do with yours?"

In answer to that, I'll say: The positions that I have held have been more of service than great pay. My opponent didn't say anything about the fact that I have taught school thirty-seven years in Navarro Couny on as low as $40.00 per month.

Now I'll lay the cards on the table as to my economy. My home is paid for, including all taxes. I have some government bonds and life insurance to protect my wife. I have two small farms partly paid for and I have a little money in the bank. Also my credit is still good at the grocery store.

I consider the office of Representative more as an honor and a service than as a means of making money.

I am not promising something on old age pensions to be misleading, but I'll do the best that I can by those that need it.

If you elect me I guarantee you service to the best of my ability.

Respectfully Yours,
PAT GERAUGHTY

NEW INSTRUCTIONS IN FIGHTING FIRE BOMBS ANNOUNCED

R. E. Smith, Director of the Eighth Civilian Defense Region, today requested that all citizens of this defense region familiarize themselves with the official instructions from the U. S. Office of Civilian Defense as to how to fight fire bombs.

"These new instructions are based on exhaustive research by technicians of OCD and the Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. Army," said Smith. "They represent changes now adopted also by British officials after careful analysis of the results of both this and the old method during actual air raids. Both American and British tests prove that a jet of water, will knock out the fire bomb in less than one minute—before major fires can get started. Fire (not the bomb) is the chief danger, and a jet of water is the best weapon. respect the fire bomb but do not fear it."

Mr. Smith called the following instructions to the attention of all citizens, explaining that the instructions have been revised during July as a result of the research made by OCD technicians:

Prompt Action Urged.

BRING YOUR FIRE-FIGHTING EQUIPMENT TO THE SCENE QUICKLY: The small magnesium bomb, which is dropped in great numbers, will go through any ordinary roof. Store your equipment where it can be reached easily, and keep it ready for instant use.

SHOOT A JET OF WATER ON THE BOMB AT ONCE: Take cover behind a door, chair, or other furniture, if you can, when you do this. The jet knocks the bomb out quickly. There will be a burst of white flame, and a scattering of molten metal, most of which will be driven away from you by the force of the jet.

QUENCH PROMPTLY THE REMAINS OF BOMB AND ANY OTHER FIRES: If any small fires are started the jet will put these out easily. Within a short time you will be free to attack any other bombs which may have fallen nearby. Be absolutely sure all the fire is out before you leave.

JET MAY PREVENT ACTION OF BURSTER: Some bombs have a small burster attachment. When the jet is used promptly, the bomb may be destroyed before the charge goes off.

THE PUMP TANK HOLDS ENOUGH WATER TO PUT OUT TWO BOMBS WHEN JET IS USED: The office of Civilian Defense will distribute a 4-gallon pump tank extinguisher to the air raid warden service in target areas. The tank can be refilled while the pump is being used.

Fire Extinguishers.

KNOW YOUR EXTINGUISHER: All fire extinguishers that contain water or water solutions of chemicals can be used on the bomb. These include the soda-acid, foam, and gas cartridge types.

Other types of extinguishers should not be used on the bomb because they do not contain water, but they can be used on fires started by bombs. Remember that your garden hose is one of the best fire-fighting devices so long as there is water pressure.

USE SAND ONLY IF A BOMB FALLS WHERE IT CANNOT START A FIRE OR IF WATER IS NOT AVAILABLE: This can be done by dropping a bag of sand over the bomb, or by the shovel-and-bucket technique.

OIL GOING TO WIN WAR SAYS JESTER IN ADDRESS HERE

CANDIDATE RAILROAD COMMISSIONER OPENED CAMPAIGN FRIDAY NIGHT

Seeing that oil is produced as it is needed—as the most vital factor in winning the war—is the biggest job in Texas today, and Beauford Jester told his home town supporters Friday night that he wanted it.

Opening his runoff campaign for the unexpired term on the Texas Railroad commission, Jester declared:

"Oil is going to win this war, and Texas has 56 per cent of all the oil in the United States. The biggest war job in Texas today is to see that this oil is produced as it it needed. That's the job I'm asking for."

Speaking in the center of a county that gave him 70 per cent of its votes in the first primary, Jester in a fighting speech declared that "oil is ammunition . . . and the railroad commission controls oil."

"This is a war about oil," he said, "for those who control oil can force their will upon those who do not. Mechanized warfare such as that we fight today is fought with oil. It takes oil to keep our planes flying, to keep our tanks and trucks rolling to victory. It takes oil to put bombers over Tokyo and Berlin.

Urges Adequate Oil Supply.

"Texas has that oil," Jester declared. "And I want the opportunity of serving on the railway commission to see to it that no plane shall ever want for gasoline, that no tank or truck shall ever be out of action for lack of oil and gasoline."

Reminding listeners of his own war experiences, Jester remarked: "I know what a battlefield is like. I know that our soldiers must be carried to the front and kept supplied. Oil—enough and on time—will do it.

"It is my idea and principle of conservation and proration that no war demand for oil or gasoline or lubricating oil or aviation gasoline shall go for one minute unfilled. Show me the demand for oil and I will vote to fill it, distributing the allowable fairly among the fields that produce the type of oil required," he stated.

Renewed Pledge To Independents.

The Corsicana candidate renewed his pledge to independent operators that proration laws would be enforced in the light in which they were passed, "to protect the weak from the strong."

"I believe firmly," Jester stated, "in the right of the state of Texas to control its own oil fields and to say how much they shall produce. The federal oil coordinator indicates each month how much oil is needed. That is his job. But it is the sole and exclusive job of the railroad commission of Texas to say how much oil shall be produced from each and every field in the state, and how it shall be produced. Let Washington tell us how much it needs, the kind it wants and when and where it is wanted, and I pledge that there shall be no delay at any time in furnishing the oil in the full amount desired."

In addition to his demands for efficient and full-time attention to the oil regulatory problems of the commission, Jester pointed to the other functions of the agency.

Transportation Important.

"Never has transportation been more important in the history of Texas than it is today," he declared. "I will give the splendid men and women who run the transportation system of Texas my fullest cooperation to help them in doing their job for their state and nation."

Jester pledged himself to a defense of franchise rights of motor transport agencies, saying he would vote to refuse other permits over routes covered as long as the public is getting full, complete and adequate service. He then assured the public he would vote for granting permits for additional lines where need was shown.

One coordinated and complete transportation system, in which railroads, trucks and busses would be used to supplement each other, was advocated by Jester.

Fair and reasonable rates for the adequate transportation of food and fiber to markets were assured farmers, stockmen and poultry raisers of the state.

Jester, who came back to Corsicana from a tour of Northeast Texas to make his opening address, closed with a pledge of "clean, decent, faithful administration."

MERCHANTS WARNED PRICE CEILING LISTS MUST BE SUBMITTED

A warning that severa penalties could be assessed against Navarro county merchants for failure to submit price ceiling lists under regulations required by the Office of Price Administration was issued Saturday morning by Wilbur A. Wright, chairman of the local war price and rationing board.

He admonished all merchants who have not filed these cost-of-living reports to the rationing board to do so immediately. Supplements to these reports must be filed by the 10th of each month, he said.

Other regulations concerning prices discussed by the rationing chairman included instructions to local merchants that the regulations require all accounts of customers to be settled by the 10th day of the second month of purchase or the merchants cannot sell to these same customers.

Referring to the critical tire shortage, Chairman Wright called attention to applicants for new tires and tubes or retreads that approved lists are published in the Corsicana Daily Sun and Semi-Weekly Light newspapers at intervals throughout the month and urged them to watch these lists for their names in order to avoid lapse of certificates. Several have applied for tires and failed to return for purchase certificates after they had been approved by the board. Certificates lapse after 30 days.

Commenting on the sugar rationing situation, Chairman Wright called attention to the fact that many persons, either from lack of information or through negligence, are failing to surrender their war rationing books to the local board when they are inducted into the armed forces. Heirs and next-of-kin also are failing to surrender to the board the books of persons who have died, he added.

Wright warned that regulations are very strict in this regard and expressed hope that the public would voluntarily co-operate in the matter.

Fairfield Gets First Bale Cotton

FAIRFIELD, Aug. 8.—(Spl.)—The first bale of 1942 cotton crop in this section was ginned by the Farmer Gin Co., Wednesday. It was grown by Ben Clary, six miles south of Fairfield, and weighed 455 pounds. A premium of $28.50 was raised by local business men and donated to the grower.

FIRST FORECAST OF YEAR'S COTTON CROP 13,085,000 BALES

CROP CONDITION 79 PER CENT OF NORMAL AGAINST 72 YEAR AGO

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(AP)—A 1942 cotton crop of 13,085,000 bales, largest since 1937, was forecast today by the Agriculture Department's crop reporting board.

This is 2,341,000 bales or 22 per cent more than the 1941 crop, and only about .2 of 1 per cent less than the 1931-40 average of 13,109,000 bales.

The board said above normal temperatures during July and favorable rainfall in most areas held boll weevil in check and had been generally beneficial for the development of the crop.

Acreage yields above average were indicated for all cotton growing states except Arizona. The average was above 1941 production except in Arkansas, Missouri, Virginia and Tennessee where unusually high yields were produced last year.

Reports to the board indicated the crop was from one to three days later than usual in Louisiana, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona, one week late in Texas and two weeks late in California. In all other states the crop was reported further advanced than usual, being one week to ten days earlier in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee.

The board said present indications were that losses by boll weevily would be generally much lighter than in 1941. Heaviest infestations were reported in the coastal plans section of the Carolinas, Georgia and Alabama. Elsewhere in the cotton belt weevils were said to be less abundant than usual.

The area of cotton in cultivation July 1 this year was 24,005,000 acres, while last year it was 23,132,000 acres. This year's acreage, after applying the average abandonment from natural causes—2.0 per cent—is placed at 23,554,000 acres.

Last year's harvested area was 22,238,000 acres.

The condition of the crop on August 1 was 79 per cent of a normal, compared with 72 a year ago and 73 the ten-year August 1 average.

Yield Per Acre.

The indicated yield of lint cotton an acre is placed at 266.7 pounds, compared with 231.9 pounds produced last year, and 215.0 pounds, the ten-year average production.

The census bureau reported that cotton of this year's growth ginned to August 1 totaled 48,615 running bales, counting round as half bales and excluding linters, compared with 1,969 bales a year ago, and 32,187 bales two years ago.

The condition of the crop on August 1 indicated yield in pounds and indicated total production in bales of 500 pounds gross weight each, by states, include:

Missouri, condition 83 per cent, acre yield 473 pounds, and indicated total production 317,000 bales; Arkansas 75, 298 and 1,316,000; Louisiana 78, 305 and 694,000; Oklahoma 89, 217 and 828,000; Texas 78, 184 and 3,177,000; New Mexico 92, 474 and 132,000.
